JAMES O. LANDON

MRS. JAMES O. LANDON.

CELEBRATING GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. James O. Landon Giving Reception at Their Home on Treadway Avenue—Married in Voluntown on February 14, 1865—Both of Old New England Ancestry

Rounding out an even half century of happy married life on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Landon will hold an informal reception this afternoon and evening at their home, No. 29 Treadway avenue, in celebration of their golden wedding.

The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the Old Line meeting house as it was called because it stood then half in the town of Sterling and half in the town of Voluntown.

Of the wedding party of twenty-five or thirty relatives and friends, only two, besides Mr. and Mrs. Landon, were present.

Mr. Landon, who is the son of John Landon, was born in 1865 at the home of his grandfather, Thaddeus Landon, who was then Sarah M. Chapman, the youngest of the ten children of Abel Chapman and Prudence Thompson, their ancestral line passing back through old North Stonington families on both his father's and her mother's side.

Church records show that the pastor of the Old Line meeting house as it was called because it stood then half in the town of Sterling and half in the town of Voluntown.
